

THE FASHION PLATE

ALMA RESTAURANT: OFFERS A CONTEMPORARY TAKE ON LATIN CUISINE

October 21, 2015 in Contemporary Dining.

Located in the heart of Cartagena's walled city, three whitewashed 17th-century buildings make up Hotel Casa San Augustin, which now hosts the new Alma Restaurant, the latest addition to the luxury resort. The Restaurant, helmed by Executive Chef Heberto Eljach, offers alfresco dining in the courtyard or indoors, amid Colombian-crafted fixtures and modern furnishings.

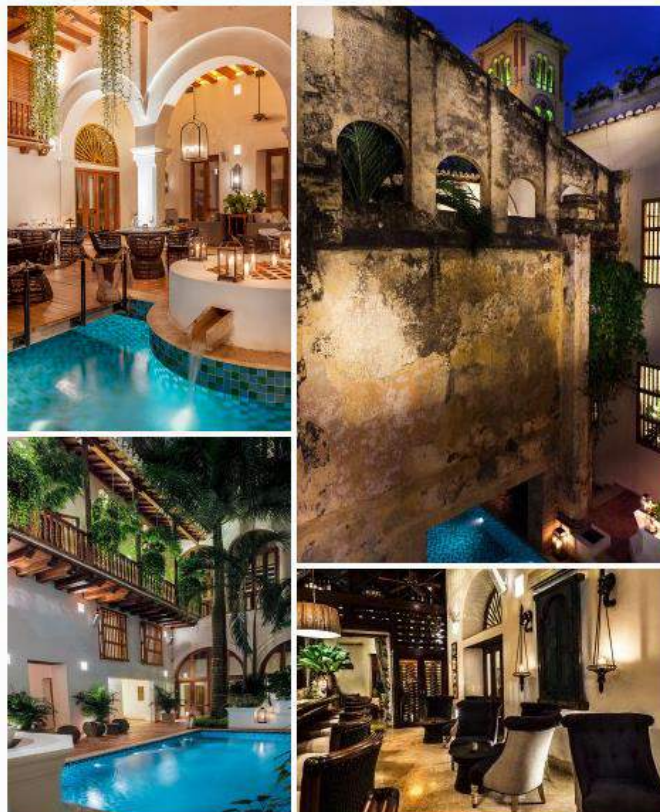

Interior designer Kelley McRorie created a stylish and tasteful environment leveraging the marble floors and original wood-beam ceilings which complement the rustic touches like wicker tables protected with glass tops, hand-carved cabinets, and decorative mosaic wall hangings.

Dining Room, Alma Restaurant

Located in the heart of Cartagena's walled city, three whitewashed 17th-century buildings make up Hotel Casa San Augustin, which now hosts the new Alma Restaurant, the latest addition to the luxury resort. The Restaurant, helmed by Executive Chef Heberto Eljach, offers alfresco dining in the courtyard or indoors, amid Colombian-crafted fixtures and modern furnishings.

Interior designer Kelley McRorie created a stylish and tasteful environment leveraging the marble floors and original wood-beam ceilings which complement the rustic touches like wicker tables protected with glass tops, hand-carved cabinets, and decorative mosaic wall hangings.

Seared Ahi Tuna

Chef Heberto Eljach draws on his experiences in 'Australasia', Cambodia, Thailand and Indonesia to create menus of striking originality. The dishes radiate the vibrant energy of Cartagena and brings a passion for inspired gastronomy.

The restaurant includes an intimate bar that serves creative cocktails from the mixologists, and includes bar-bites from the kitchen such as a zesty mini ceviche of trout, shrimp and octopus and local conch croquettes with remoulade.

